Moods are the life-giving substances which flow through the veins of a school. To an outsider, moods reflect the internal activities of the organization which is striving toward a single goal. Education without moods is an empty shell; Monroe Central is never a shell.

Jeff shows the ins and outs of Monroe Central. A typical school day begins on the bus for most MC students, and ends seven hours and five minutes later on the bus.

It's All in How
You
Approach It

Monroe Central Well Represented at

Monroe Centrals' junior candidate for 1967 Mardi Gras Queen was Miss Jackie Oren. Jackie brought home one of the most coveted awards of the Mardi Gras, the Miss Personality Trophy.

Rusty Clements and LeRoy Duncan escort Jackie through the streets of Winchester.

Mardi Gras

Miss Angela Herron was the Monroe Central senior class candidate for Mardi Gras Queen. Angela competed against nine Randolph County girls for the title. Although she did not win the seniors were very proud of her performance.

Many senior activities take a lot of discussion.

Several seniors devoted a lot of time to get the yearbook ready to print.

Like most of the seniors Bernie participates well in class.

Students Are Active Everywhere

MC seniors kept with the latest styles such as long hair.

The seniors at Monroe Central for "67" were very proud of their class. In their senior year more students made the honor roll than any other class. Even with this high scholastic rating they found time to be one of the more athletic classes to graduate from MC. The seniors of "67" left many traditions to be followed by the following graduating classes from Monroe Central.

The seniors at Monroe Central tried hard to lead the way in school spirit. They made numerous signs and put on a skit for a pep session. Throughout the season they showed school spirit by winning the banner yells, decorating the halls with banners and sayings on school spirit.

The seniors came decked out the day of a big game.

Seniors Provide Spirit for MC

These are some of the "beautiful" cheerleaders that the seniors produced for the pep session.

The Monroe Central senior class worked several weeks preparing for what some teachers referred to as "the best pep session Monroe Central has ever had." Using outfits acquired from various groups around the school the seniors portrayed the Golden Bears and their foes.

John Beeson, dressed in cheerleaders' attire, answers questions for the roving reporter.

P.T.A. Open House gives parents an idea of a day at MCHS. Parents attend the classes of their children and find out how the high school of today operates. This gives the parents a better understanding of school and student.

OPEN- HOUSE

The Guidance Program is explained by the school's guidance counselor, Mr. Meister.

The library is a storehouse of learning. Books on almost anything can be found there just a short distance from class rooms.

Visual Aids Add to Learning

That's the right button according to Mr. Lockard.

A Pep Session

The cheerleaders for Monroe Central gave the pep session a little flavor of Christmas when they gave a skit with Lee Zimmerman playing the part of Santa Claus.

Golden Bears' cheerleaders flock around Santa and ask him for a BIG victory for Christmas.

Lee Zimmerman, playing the part of Santa Claus also backs our Bears.

Has Many Faces

The cheerleaders lead a yell for the Golden Bears.

Mr. Rottorff gives a talk about the team and the way he thinks they will perform in the coming games.

Time Out for Teachers

The teachers of Monroe Central were involved in many different activities throughout the school year. They held numerous teacher's meetings: They were sponsors of the various school organizations; They formed a basketball team to challenge the senior intramurals and others.

Heads bent toward listening, the teachers find most of the items talked about very interesting.

It takes a good deal of thought before making a decision.

Teachers Work Hard to Help Students

Miss Fodera and Mr. St. Myers in deep discussion.

My hair isn't combed!

Teachers enjoy the quietness of after-school hours. However their working day is far from ended. There are papers to grade, tests to make up, and, of course, that few minutes to talk over the trials and tribulations of the day's events.

Mrs. James, school secretary, is caught in the act of working. But around MC this isn't a rare occasion for she is kept busy by students and faculty alike.

GIRL'S STATE

BOY'S STATE

Monroe Central's representatives for Boy's State were John Beeson (left) and Dan Wynn (right). They attended the annual event and both held positions in the mock government they set up throughout the campus of Indiana. In reliving the event they told of things that reinforced the statement, "Boys will be boys!"

Moments to Remember

And there was a night of dancing and feasting on the island.

ADMINISTRATION AND FACULTY . . .

The people who devoted a part of themselves to the profession of teaching.

Who guided us in our search for knowledge.
Who encouraged us to go on when goals seemed unattainable.

These are the people who face many problems, who make many decisions, and who instill knowledge. To them we give our most humble appreciation.

Gary Powers contemplates Mr. Meister's advice.

SENIORS . . .

The principal mood of the senior class is one of togetherness. The senior class of 1967 is the first class to complete all four years of high school in the new Monroe Central High School. Two rival groups of students united to strive toward one common goal—education.

UNDERCLASSMEN . . .

Nothing gives such a spectrum of moods as do the faces of the underclassmen.

From the eager, anticipating faces of the seventh graders to the almost-senior look of the juniors, the moods of the school community come to life through the actions of its underclassmen citizens.

Reading Class Helps Develop Study Skills

ACADEMICS . . .

Through the sports, clubs, and other activities which surround MC, comes the ever glowing light of the academics. It takes many different and varying things all put together to build the life of a high school such as Monroe Central. But of these many things one will always find academics at the base. No school has or will ever exist without its academic program and likewise no academics could exist without schools such as MCHS.

Social Sciences Help Students

Mr. St. Myers doesn't always stick to the textbook. He widens his students' knowledge with a variety of assignments.

Mrs. Salyer instructs her students on the use of maps.

Mr. St. Meyers and Mrs. Salyer teach in the social science department and each teach some in the language arts.

These freshman students look like they are enjoying the story that Miss Fodrea has assigned them.

Everyone gets enthused over Mrs. Stepleton's discussions.

Miss Thomas gives her pupils a chance to lead the class discussion while other students ask questions.

Experience Aids a

Mrs. Darling teaches girls how to use different office machines such as this duplicating machine. Mrs. Darling is giving Janelda Cross' work an approving eye.

Student's Learning

Bernie Erwin is shown here trying to sell his car. He has been taught the way to make a sales pitch and is now putting it to use.

BOOKS . . . FOOD FOR KNOWLEDGE

Librarians are also busy during their activity period. Keeping up with the students are Pam Maranda, and Kitty Garringer.

Helpers in the library are busy helping other students.

The social science courses are concerned mainly with the Humanities. They teach the student what life was like, is like, and will possibly be like.

Mr. Wood keeps a watchful eye to make sure everything is done properly.

UNDERSTANDING PEOPLE OUR GOAL

Mr. Owens helps the seniors understand the formation of state and national government.

HONORS . . .

In any educational situation there are those individuals who excel in the many activities of school life. These students earned the respect and admiration of the students, faculty and the community. This section of the yearbook is in tribute to these fine citizens of our school and community.

Scholarships Aid Students in Furthering Education

Palms and Pineapples Send Prom Goers to an Enchanted Island

Queen Angela Herron and Princess Jackie Oren reigned over the enchanted island at the prom.

STUDENT LIFE . . .

As one student put it, "The teachers own 55 minutes of every school hour, that other five minutes belongs to us." And it does.

This section portrays what students do during the five minute break between classes, after school, and in the evenings. School would miss the aim of education if students were confined to classroom situations. The energy, ambition, and creativity displayed by Monroe Central students demonstrates an important mood of education.

Seniors Took the Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow Test

Is Jane thinking over an answer, or is she daydreaming?

These senior girls are being extra careful as they complete this test, for the highest scoring girl will be the MC Homemaker of Tomorrow.

The seniors at Monroe Central took the State Employment tests in January. The test consisted of a written part and an aptitude part. They had to put pegs in holes so that they could find what vocation was fitted for them.

Being a Senior Involves Many Tests

A whirlpool bath was a joyous occasion to some of the athletes at Monroe Central.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES

LeRoy must have said something embarrassing.

The water fountain was a much visited place during the school year.

Who says you can't relax during school hours?

Would you believe the Three Stooges?

The picture above shows some of the seniors trying to decide on a commencement schedule.

At Work and Leisure
Our Students Shine

Many hours of practice went into the production of "Once upon a Mattress".

Much Work Went into "Once Upon a Mattress"

There were smiles, laughter and tears on stage as well as in the audience when the curtain parted on "Once Upon a Mattress." Cindy Collins, Becky Pormen and Steve Shockney had the leads in the comedy which was directed by Mr. David Lyons.

A ROYAL AFFAIR

Cindy Collins, playing the part of the possessive mother, tells Terrisa Griffith that she has failed to pass the test that would allow her to marry the prince.

Prince Dauntless, played by Wayne King, gives Winafred, (Becky Porman), an approving look.

Gary Craig works on triplicate copies of the layout. This is the final and most important stage before a page is sent to the printer.

Our yearbook grew as the year progressed. The annual staff of Monroe Central put in long hours of "blood, sweat, and tears" in an effort to give MCHS an accurate record of the 1966-67 school year.

Boys' Pep Club Yelled As "Flip" and "Flop" Tumbled

The two that helped lead the Golden Bears onto the floor this past season were known to the student body as "Flip" and "Flop". Angela Herron and Gary Craig led the Bears into action by doing various acrobatic and tumbling stunts across the floor.

SPORTS . . .

Sports are a visual sign of any institution's achievements and accomplishments. Monroe Central High School is no different from any other high school in this respect. What makes Monroe Central stand out is the association each student has with athletics, whether it be, as a participant, cheerleader or spectator.

These cheerleaders have put in a lot of hard practice and work to back their team and they did it successfully. These girls have a lot of pep and steam.

Bears Third in Mid-Eastern, First in Ran-Del Conference

It takes hits to win the game.

The Monroe Central baseball team, coached by Gene Bottorff rounded out the 1966 baseball season by winning the Ran-Del Fall Conference. The Bears finished third in the Mid-Eastern summer conference. Their summer record was 9 wins and 7 losses. The fall season produced a 5-win, no-loss record. The team consisted of nine seniors, five juniors, and one sophomore.

Sometimes it takes a long reach to make the play.

Hardcourt Men

SEVENTH

MC'S GOLDEN CUBS

Tenseness is evident on their faces as the game nears its end.

MONROE CENTRAL GOLDEN BEARS

Greg Grove, a 5'8" senior guard, did a fine job for the Bears this year. He was one of the leading scorers and did a fine job on defense.

Steve Reed is a 5'11" senior forward for the Golden Bears. Steve was the leading shooter and scorer for the team this year.

The Monroe Central Golden Bears didn't have as good a season as they had hoped but the Bears showed that they could play good ball when the time came. They beat the big team, Huntington County Community High School, by 15 points. The team consists of six seniors, and four juniors. All but two were lettermen.

Golfers Finish

Coach Gene Bottorff's golfers turned out in record numbers this year. The young golfers showed much promise for next year, the third year of varsity competition.

Winning Season

Trackmen Compete in Rain, Cold, Mud

Despite adverse weather conditions, Monroe Central trackmen completed a winning season. Several records were bettered this year including the shot put record by Steve Shockney.

A near miss and a four point landing.

It was a cold day at the track sectional.

ADVERTISING . . .

Advertising is vital to the school, community, merchants, and students. When students are in a buying mood, merchants smile, students become excited, and parents cast inquiring glances.

The relationship between school and community is a close one because each could not survive alone. The unifying factor is the student.

REFLECTIONS ON 1966-'67

As the year comes to a close there are many moods. There is a lot of happiness, yet some sadness. We have gained knowledge and have shared many rewarding experiences in completing this 1966-67 yearbook.

The pictures in this book reflect the experiences and moods of the school life and by an uncommon grace of expression, mirror what most of us have thought or felt. We hope this book will bring back the events of this year and hold them forever in your memory.

We would like to express our appreciation to the many advertisers who have supported our yearbook. We are grateful for the time and cooperation given to us by Reid's Studio and Inter-Collegiate Press. We also thank the administration, faculty and student body for their patience and help.

May this chapter that is closing marked with happiness and success, be just an introduction to "life's book of happiness" and may each chapter yet unread turn out just right for you.
